THE MAYES NAME

The use of surnames began about the year 1000 A.D., originating probably in Normandy. Most surnames are, therefore, at best only a few hundred years old, and many in their modern form have been in use only a few generations.

The origin of most surnames is largely a matter of conjecture, but it is generally conceded that many of them are derivations of given names, and the Mayes name evidently belongs to this class.

Bardsley speaks of it as a baptismal name, "the son of Matthew", but offers as an alternative that it may be from the nickname "May". He is corroborated by Dingley, who asserts that the derivation from Matthew or Matheus, Old French or Frisian, is so self evident as to require no further proof. (History from Marble, by Dingley, 1542 A.D.), (Dictionary of English and Welsh Surnames, by Bardsley, pages 523-524.) Barber takes practically the same view and considers the name a contraction of Bartholomaeus, or thinks it may have been derived from "Meysse", a local Belgian name. (British Family Names, by Barber, page 190.)

The name appears in all the languages heard along the borders of the North Sea, and Barber gives the following forms; English, Mayes, Mays and Mase; Norman, Masi; Frisian, Mes and Mews; German, Mais and Mese; Dutch, Mes, Muis, Moes, and Mees; Flemish, Moas, Maes, Mies, Moys and Muys; Danish, Mase and Mess. In the First Census, the name is spelled in a dozen different ways as follows: Mayes, May, Mais, Maise, Mays, Maye, Mayse, Mayses, Mayze, Maze, Mey and Meys. (U. S. Census of 1790).

Such variations, due possibly to linguistic characteristics and phonetic spelling, aided by the general illiteracy of the times and the generations through which they have been handed down, are found in practically all surnames. For example Shakespeare's name appears in the English documents spelled in twenty-seven ways varying from Shaxper to Shaxbure, and it is difficult to recognize Sevenoaks in Snooks, D'Eagles in Diggles or Longchamps in Longshanks.

Judging from all this data as a whole, we are led to conclude that the name of the American Family, if not of pure English origin, had at least been thoroughly anglicized by Centuries of residence in the British Isles, and that the first of the name who crossed the ocean to try their fortunes in the new world set sail from an English port.

That they came at a very early date is evidenced by the frequent recurrence of the name in the early colonial records, and the wide distribution of the families bearing some form of the patronym as returned in the First Census, which reported more than 1500 individuals of the name comprising 279 families distributed as follows:

New Hampshire	3
Vermont	7
Massachusetts	43
Rhode Island	4
Connecticut	20
New York	8
Pennsylvania	42
Maryland	11
Virginia	59
North Carolina	57
South Carolina	25

2-Henry-----Cir. 1765-----March 6, 1850

Very little is known of this Mayes. All tradition relative to his antecedents and even his name has been lost. He was living in the State of Pennsylvania at the time of the birth of his son, Henry, and may have later removed with his family to Virginia.

His great grandsons differ as to the personnel of his family. Some give the number of his sons as three and others place the number at four. No one remembers having heard of any daughters. One (William Henry, IV-11) thinks the entire family moved from Pennsylvania to Virginia; whether with their father or after his death he does not know.

William Henry (IV-11) asserted positively that he was an Englishman and was born in England and immigrated to America where he settled in the State of Pennsylvania.

Richard Johnson Mayes IV-14 recalls having often heard his father John Mayes III-3 say his father Henry Mayes II-2. was an Englishman. This corroborates what Wm. Henry Mayes IV-11 said about 15 years before. Sarepta Anne (IV-29) says her grandfather spoke perfect English and gave no indication of German blood as origin.

A Mayes family, contemporary with this family, originating in the South-eastern section of Pennsylvania from which later moved, about 1750, to the section of the state near Pittsburgh where Henry was born, were of Scotch descent. (Crumrine's History of Washington County, Pennsylvania), page 762.

Henry is the only one of his children of whom we have any record. The other sons remained in the East or took another trail in their Western migration. When Charles Addison Mayes (IV-28) administered on the estate of his father, Raleigh Mayes, he found among his father's papers letters from a Mayes living in the State of Oregon, and later himself received letters from him. The man seemed familiar with all the family names and affairs, and said, or at least left the impression, that he was a descendant of one of the brothers of Henry Mayes. He wrote that he expected to visit Missouri, but never came.

Henry Mayes was born in the State of Pennsylvania near the site of the present city of Pittsburgh. The age at which he removed to Virginia is uncertain. The family may have been taken to Virginia by his father while he was yet a child or Henry may have gone alone after reaching manhood. He was undoubtedly living in Virginia at the time of his marriage.

The counties, Fauquier, Culpeper and Rappahannock converge at one point. Near this center Henry Mayes was married to Mary Palmer about 1797, and here he lived until his children reached their majority. Two grandsons, Stephen (IV-27) and Charles (IV-28) are emphatic in their statement that Henry lived in Fauquier County, and the latter gives his place of residence as "Fauquier County, near Culpeper Court House", but as Culpeper Court House is in Culpeper County and is eight miles from the nearest boundary of Fauquier County, the statement is somewhat enigmatic. However, Richard Johnson Mayes IV-14, fifteen years later gave Fauquier County, Virginia, near Culpeper Court House as Henry's residence in Virginia. Another grandson, Wm. Henry (IV-11) is certain that Henry was married in Rappahannock County, but as Rappahannock County was as a separate county until 1831, many years after Henry's marriage this statement also is open to explanation.

In response to an inquiry the Clerk of Rappahannock County reported that there was no record of any marriage of persons of the name of Mayes among the early records of his county, and that the marriage was probably prior to the formation of his county. The clerk of Culpeper County was also unable to find record of such marriages. Green's Notes on Culpeper County make no mention of the Mayes Family. In fact the only reference to the family so far discovered among the Virginia records are in the deed books of Culpeper County where the names of John Mayes and Martin Mayes, the two oldest sons occur as executing deeds to land in that county in 1823.

The returns from the Census of 1790, which may usually be relied upon to determine residence during this period, were destroyed when the British burned the Capitol during the War of 1812, and many of the county records which might supply the hiatus were destroyed during the Civil War. It is possible that a careful search of local county records, especially those of Fauquier County, might uncover data which would throw some light on the early history of the family, but the probability is hardly strong enough to justify such a search.

Mary Palmer was familiarly known in the family as Molly. Her father was of pure Teutonic blood, and was born in Germany and immigrated to America in her early girlhood. The personnel of her father's family is almost as uncertain as that of her father-in-law, but among her brothers are remembered Joseph, William, John, and James Palmer, and a sister Elizabeth, known as Betsy, who was married to a McKinsey, and had two sons John and Charles. Charles McKinsey of Elsberry, Missouri was a son of the latter.

Henry Mayes remained in Virginia until all his children had reached their majority and three of them were married. In 1832 his youngest son moved with his bride to Missouri.

and sent back such alluring reports of the new country beyond the Great River, that two years later Henry sold his Virginia land and most of his personalty, and taking with him four slaves, Frank, John, Moses and Harriet followed Raleigh on the western trail. He reached Missouri in 1834 and bought from one of the Palmers the farm later owned by his grandson, Richard Johnson Mayes, (IV-16). Here with his entire family of children and grandchildren within the radius of a few miles he passed the remainder of his long life, his slaves maintaining the household after the death of his wife. His will is on record at Troy, Missouri, as follows:

Book 2, Page 53, Will Records of Lincoln County, Missouri.

WILL OF HENRY MAYES

I, Henry Mayes, being in bad health, though in sound mind and disposing memory, knowing the certainty of death and the necessity of preparing to meet it, do make this my last will and testament as follows, to-wit.

1st. I leave my negro boy John to my son Raleigh Mayes; also my negro boy Franklin to my son Raleigh Mayes.

2nd. I leave to my son Martin Mayes my negro girl Harriet, and my negro boy Moses, and two hundred dollars in cash.

3rd. I leave to my son John Mayes one cow, and to Issabella Mayes and her children one-half of all the lands I now own during her lifetime and then after her death to go to her children.

4th. And to my daughter Catherine Daniels I leave the other half of my lands at an equal division.

5th. All the rest of the property owned by me to be sold at the highest bidder on a twelve months credit for all sums over five dollars, and that sum cash in hand, with bond and approved security and after the money collected all my just debts to be paid if any.

6th. And after the collection of the money I want it put out at interest and the proceeds thereof to go to the use and benefit of my beloved wife, Mary Mayes for her support through life, and after her death if there shall be any surplus of money left I wish it to be equally divided among my four children.

And lastly, I appoint my son Raleigh Mayes my executor.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 16th day of March, A.D. 1842.

Attest:

C. Gray (Clifford Gray)
Thomas H. S. Grimes.

This will filed for probate, March 9, 1850.

Clifford Gray owned the Arthur Gray farm adjoining the Howard farm on the south side and the Bert Turner farm on the east. One of his daughters married Francis Withington and her sister, Polly Gray married Garner the father of Ed. Garner.

Thomas H. S. Grimes owned the present Howard farm and two of his daughters married John Howard. He was the master of the negro Andrew Grimes. Gray and Grimes were important men in their community.

Clifford Gray was versed in the primitive methods of healing of the day, and Sarepta Ann Whiteside (IV,29) remembers his being called to treat her mother, Emily Kemper Mayes and bleeding her, one of the generally accepted remedies of the times.

Both Henry and Mary are buried in the family cemetery on this farm. Headstones were placed for each of them by Raleigh III-5, who administered on the estate. The exact dates of birth are missing, and the inscriptions merely give the dates of death and their ages as 85 and 70 respectively.

Note: Since writing the above attention has been called to the statement by Stephen Franklin Mayes that Raleigh Mayes (III-5.) son of Henry Mayes, was born in Norfolk, Norfolk County, Virginia and was married there. This may furnish the clue to the whole situation, and in the Records of Norfolk County may be found the record of the marriages deeds or wills which we have been unable to find in Culpeper and Rappahannock Counties. Later: The family Bible of Raleigh Mayes says he was born in Fauquier County and married in Culpeper Co. This is final, but Norfolk Co. may at that time have been a part of Fauquier or Culpeper County.

John Mayes was born in Virginia (Census of 1860) and evidently married there although no record of his marriage has been found. Soon after he seems to have moved to the State of Indiana. After, a few years he again moved to Ohio and later followed his father's family to Missouri. At his father's death he bought the home farm. William Henry thinks he lived in that state about seven years, and the Census of 1860 shows that several of his children were born there.

He later joined his father and brothers in Missouri, where he remained the rest of his life. The dates of birth and death given in the family Bible do not correspond in a few unimportant details with those found on the headstones in the family cemetery, but those given above are thought to be correct.

Isabelle Randolph (ISA) McCormick was born in Virginia (Census of 1860). She was the daughter of William McCormick and Lucy Stallard. (Biographical Record of St. Charles, Lincoln and Warren Counties, page 491).

Cyrus Hall McComick the inventor of the plow and reaper was a member of this family.

Martin Mayes was born in Fauquier County, Virginia and came with his father to Missouri in 1834. He was the only one of the brothers who was not married in Virginia. He was a member of the Baptist Church, was a deacon in the old Union Baptist Church. When New Hope began to develop the church was moved there and some years after the congregation voted to change the name of the New Hope Baptist Church. Martin was not present when the vote was taken but the following Sabbath he rose in his place and expressed regret that the name should have been changed and referring to the history and associations of the old name said he would have voted against the change had he been present, and though the action of the church was never rescinded it was the general opinion that had the old man been at the business meeting the name would have remained Union Church to the end. Martin is buried with his family in the family cemetery on his farm adjoining the farm of his brother Raleigh, later occupied by William Duncan and Martha Washington (VI-24, 25)

Cordelia Palmer. (Delia) daughter of John William and Louvisa Riddle, was born in Fauquier County, Virginia. (Biographical Record of St. Charles, Lincoln and Warren County, page 338). (Census of 1860). Her grandfather served in the War of 1812 and her great-grandfather in the American Revolution.

Raleigh Mayes was born in Fauquier County, Virginia. The family Bible of Raleigh belonging to Olevia Singleton (V-83) says positively that he was born in Fauquier Co. Virginia and married in Culpeper County, Virginia. He and his wife were the first of their respective families to come to Missouri. They camped first night in Lincoln Co. at Lost Creek ford where Bluff Road Crosses, stayed here several days looking over the country and then bought home place and at once cut logs and built cabin. Raleigh and Emily Mayes were so pleased with the new country, then an untracked wilderness in the eastern section of Lincoln County, that they urged their people to come west and settle with them, and both the Mayes and Kemper families soon followed them, arriving about two years later.

Raleigh Mayes reached Missouri with his bride in 1832, having made the trip on horseback. At the time of his settlement the Indians were camped all along the Bluff. Their teepees were numerous and the mounds in the present orchard of the Jacob Ellis Place, which was a part of Raleigh Mayes' tract of land are the remains of fallen lodges which members of the family now (1913) living (Laurinda Catherine IV-30) remembers having seen. The whoops and calls of the Indians were frequently heard in the forest about, and in the father's absence from home the children were frequently kept in the house and the doors kept barred.

Sarepta Anne (IV-29) remembers her mother Emily Kemper Mayes telling that frequently Indians would come to the house, enter without ceremony and seat themselves. Sometimes they came when she was cooking in the log kitchen situated, according to custom, apart from the rest of the house and entering would seat themselves about the fire place where she was cooking and smoke in silence. They never offered offense or appropriated anything, but she was always so terrified that she would leave the meal cooking, take refuge in the house and bar the doors and wait for them to leave while her dinner burned. The Indians in this section were friendly and were never known to commit depredation after Raleigh settled there. Arrow heads and other Indian relics are still found in profusion over this and adjoining tracts of land. Game abounded in super abundance. The second morning after reaching this camp Raleigh went down to the ford on what is now Lost Creek, and waiting there killed three deer, the next morning at the same place he killed two deer. When visitors arrived and there was no meat in the house, he would take his rifle and range through the woods until he found a deer, hang it up where it was shot and skin down the hind quarters, cut it off there with his hunting knife and carry it home on his back leaving the remainder of the deer to the scavengers of the forest. Sarepta remembers having frequently seen deer pass through the yard and recalls that they always retired to the house and watched them through the windows. The last deer she recalls seeing came over the hill from the southeast and passed between the twin blackoaks beside the negro quarters in the backyard of the present residence at El-Mo farm.

Her brothers Stephen Franklin and Charles Addison caught a young fawn and confined it in a log outbuilding. It was a beautiful dappled brown and white creature but untamable and rushed back and forth butting its head against the cracks between the logs until it died from exhaustion. However, they succeeded in taming two other fawns they captured. One was grown when Mr. Priest's dogs chased and killed it. The other was very tame and regularly followed the children to school every day and would then come back to accompany them home in the afternoon. They sewed a piece of red flannel about its neck to prevent hunters from mistaking it for a wild deer, but a neighbor killed it as his slaves later related, cut off the flannel and said nothing.

On one occasion a deer which had been chased by men and dogs jumped the fence into the yard while Raleigh was absent from home and in some way entangled its antlers in the fence, and on account of its exhausted condition--perhaps wounded--was held. Emily Kemper Mayes seized an ax and with the assistance of a negro woman, one of her slaves, killed it and dressed it.

She heard her mother relate the incident of the killing of the stag many times. When the buck entered the yard exhausted a large mastiff which they kept seized it by the nose and held it. The negro woman thrust a rail from the fence through its branching antlers and twisted its head to the ground while Emily chopped off its head with an ax. When Raleigh came home he was much concerned and gave strict instructions that if another deer ever appeared they should at once take refuge in the house as they were dangerous and were known to kill men who wounded them. He said had it not been for the dog the stag would doubtless have severely injured them both.

Wild turkeys were found in large droves all through the woods and no attention was paid to them until larger game began to fail and shot guns came in to supplant the rifles. When a turkey was wanted the roosting places were visited at night and any number secured.

Raleigh's first house, like all pioneer homes, was built of roughly hewn logs with clay floor, clapboard roof, the cracks between the logs being "chinked" with chips and clay, mortar being then unknown. It was heated by a great fire place which consumed large quantities of wood with little effect, most of the heat going up the chimney. All of the first furniture was home made. Having no tubs or jars in which to store the first lard he made, he cut down a hollow tree and made a trough in which he stored the lard. Practically all the clothing was of home manufacture. Skins were sent to the tan yard and then manufactured into rough shoes by local cobblers; sometimes by the slaves. Wool was carded, spun and woven into cloth after which it was fashioned into garments all by the women of the family assisted by the slaves, even the beds and blankets being made in this manner. All clothing both of men and women hung from the shoulders and none of it was suspended from the waist. Food was plentiful but of little variety and consisted largely of wild meat. There was no fed meat, even the hogs being raised on mast and allowed to range the woods until needed. Stoves were unknown and all the food was cooked in the fire place, either in pots hanging from a crane or in pans or ovens placed on the coals. Corn bread was served on week days and biscuit on Sunday only as wheat was scarce and the grinding a difficult and expensive operation. The slaves were never given wheat bread and as a result corn bread, a most valuable ration, became a social outcast, and it was almost an insult to serve corn bread when visitors came. There were few vegetables and such as there were small and ill flavored. There was no method of preserving fruit except by burying in the ground or drying. Until cane was planted the only sugar obtainable was maple sugar, and every farmer maintained his sugar camp where it was regularly made for the family use every spring. Later on loaf sugar came into use, but as it sold for $1.25 per pound the price was prohibitive. Nuts were carefully gathered every fall as an important addition to the winter menu. The use of whiskey was universal. Only homemade whiskey was to be obtained and it sold for from 12¢ to 25 ¢ per gallon, and was found on every table. Tobacco was the principal crop. Ten acres of corn or wheat was considered an unusually large acreage. Wheat was sown broadcast by hand, harvested with the reap hook, threshed out with the flail over a pen of rails and carried on horseback to Clarksville, where it was sold three bushels for a dollar, or 33 1/3¢ per bushel. As there were few commodities which the pioneer could sell for cash, money was very scarce and its purchasing power was great. Although taxes were small, it was a hard struggle for the poorer people to get sufficient actual money to pay them and as late as 1840 a debt of two dollars was a burden. Raleigh Mayes was Constable of Hurricane Township, at that time a place of importance as it constituted the executive officer of the law in what was then frontier country. The fees of the office, though small, gave him a little ready money, and his trips to the county seat at Troy and his duties as Constable and later as Justice of the Peace, gave him the opportunity to buy a great deal of land sold for taxes. As a result he acquired large tracts of land which he farmed with his slaves. Slaves were the dividing line between the aristocracy and the plebian of the times. Slaves labor was always slow, and unintelligent. They were more of a luxury than a necessity and in later days were principally valuable about the house, but at that time they were of real advantage in clearing the land of the dense growths of timber, and they added much to Raleigh's prosperity, making land profitable which otherwise would not have produced taxes. He owned over twenty slaves at the opening of the Civil War, men, women and children, and in the tax lists of 1850 is named as one of the largest slaveholders in the county. (History of Lincoln County, 1888, page 320). He was President of the First Board of Directors of what is now the Elsberry School District No. 16, at that time including all of Township 51, Range 2 and 3 East, and established in 1837. (History of Lincoln County, 1888, page 462). He was active in the organization of, and was director on the first Board of Directors of the "Agricultural and Mechanical Society" which initiated the present Lincoln County Fair. The Board was organized in 1855 and the first fair was held, October 1, 1856. (History of Lincoln County, 1888, page 328). (Atlas of Lincoln County, 1879, page 12.). He was first elected Justice of the Peace then considered a position of no little honor and importance, at an election held at the dwelling house of John Galloway, August 31, 1835, and held that office until the war eliminated all democrats (Record of Commissions, Vol. I, page 105, Records of Lincoln County, Missouri)

In the course of time Raleigh became an important factor in his community and accumulated considerable property holdings. In 1860 he was assessed with realty valued at $24,300, personally $17,850 a total of $42,150 (Census of 1860) and was accounted a wealthy man in that time. He gave each child at marriage a farm of 200 acres of land and other property. He and his wife are buried in a small family burying ground which at the time was directly upon the New Hope-Falmouth Road a short distance from his house, but which through change of the road is now isolated. His will is on file in the probate records of Lincoln County at Troy.

WILL OF RALEIGH MAYES

County of Lincoln,
State of Missouri.

September 13, 1869

Know all men by these presents. I, Raleigh Mayes, being of sound mind do make this my last will and testament, disposing of my property in the following manner:

First, My home farm that my son, S. W. Mayes is now living on, I give and bequeath to my wife Emily Mayes to have and to hold during her natural life. It is my desire that my son S. W. Mayes shall keep said farm in possession, and all that is required of him is to support his mother.

Second, I also give to my wife Emily Mayes one bed and bedding and my horse and buggy.

Third, I give to my daughter Mary Ellen Elsberry one thousand dollars.

Fourth, I give to my son S. F. Mayes one thousand dollars.

Fifth, I give to my daughter L. C. Ellis one thousand dollars.

Sixth, I give to my daughter Sarepta Whiteside one mare known as the sorrel filly, Seventh, I give to my son S. W. Mayes three mares, Kate, Fannie and Jennie and all of the farming utensils, and also all of the household furniture that is now in his possession.

Eighth, The above mentioned farm that I have given to my wife Emily Mayes, after her death I give to my son S. W. Mayes during his natural life. After his death I give it, the said farm, to his lawful children.

Ninth, I give to Martha Kitson the bed and bedding that she now has in use.

Tenth, The remainder of my property after all my just debts are paid I desire to be sold either private or public as my executors my think best and the proceeds divided equally between my five children, namely: Mary Ellen Elsberry, S. F. Mayes, C. W. Mayes, Sarepta Whiteside and L. C. Ellis.

I appoint my two sons S. F. Mayes and C. W. Mayes my lawful executors to carry into effect this my last will, attending to all business, to sue and be sued, and I desire that no security shall be required of them, and I further desire that no business pertaining to my estate shall be brought into court but that all such business shall be transacted as I would do myself, no letters of administration issued, nothing save the recording of this my last will and testament.

Raleigh Mayes (SEAL)

Witness names:

CODICIL TO MY LAST WILL
September 17, 1869

The farm mentioned in my will above, composing my first gift, contains three hundred and sixty acres, more or less, and being all the land I own there or adjoining thereto, I give as in manner above stated in my last will dated September 15, 1869.

Raleigh Mayes (SEAL)

Witness:

This will was filed for probate December 6, 1869

When Martin Kemper came to Missouri he brought to Emily the slave girl, Riah (pronounced Re-ah), who had attended her from earliest childhood. Riah was said to be of mixed Negro and Indian blood, and though she was devoted to "Miss Emily" and obeyed her every wish, she was of intractable disposition and was constantly creating dissension among the other slaves. Raleigh admonished her repeatedly and finally told her if she made trouble in the "quarters" again he would sell her down South. Riah accepted this as a challenge and that week created such a violent demonstration that Raleigh without further discussion put her in an ox cart and took her to Falmouth where a slave boat was buying for the Southern market and sold her and she was never heard from again.

But Riah had grown up in the Kemper menage and had served as one of the house girls from earliest youth and when Martin and Rosamond heard she had been peremptorily sold, they were much hurt and so indignant that they never spoke to Raleigh again. Sarepta (IV-30) relates that she would go with her mother, Emily, to visit her grandfather and grandmother Kemper but her father, Raleigh, never again visited in the Kemper household.

Martin rewrote his will substituting another son-in-law, Uncle Seneca Watts, for Raleigh as executor and leaving Emily's share of his estate to her children, to be paid to them when they married or became of age.

Sarepta married at the age of 15, in her father's house, but much to his displeasure because of her youth. She explained that she had never dressed herself until she was married. Two housemaids dressed her and her sisters every morning.

The morning after her marriage a Negro boy "came riding up" with a message from Uncle Seneca asking her and "Ed" to come to see him. Accordingly, she and her new husband, who had been her teacher at the Lost Creek School, and who had boarded with the family as her father was a member of the school board, rode horseback over to call on Uncle Seneca and Aunt Nancy, her mother's sister. Uncle Seneca congratulated them and took from the clock on the mantle a deerskin bag and gave her two twenty dollar gold pieces, her share of her grandfather Kemper's estate.

Raleigh was the first man in Lincoln County to free his slaves. He was a subscriber to the New York Tribune and when he read the announcement of President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, he directed the houseboy to ring the big bell. The big bell was mounted on a tall standard in the side yard and could be heard all over the farm, marking the noon hour and "quitting time" and such emergencies as this. The slaves came trooping up from the quarters, men, women and children and gathered in a semi-circle in the yard. Ida Glovina (V-107) was visiting at her grandfather's and walked with him out to the side porch holding to his hand.

Raleigh addressed them from the porch and told them the government at Washington had abolished slavery and they were all free. He told them that those desiring to remain could continue as before and he would pay them wages. All who desired to go might leave when they wished and were free to take with them their bed clothing and their personal belongings.

A scene of utter pandemonium followed. Many cried and assured him they would never leave. Others jumped up and down and ran in circles crying "I'm free, I'm free, I'm free". Some ran through the front gate or climbed the fence and started running down the road. And for years after Raleigh would get letters from distant cities pleading with him to send them money so they could come back home and work for him forever.

Slavery involved considerable responsibility. Raleigh had a long building for storage of meat with a high platform porch with scales where every Saturday the overseer weighed out the meat rations to the heads of all families in proportion to the number in the family group. He killed 50 hogs at a time and supplemented pork with beef and mutton. Slave women carded and spun the wool and wove the cloth in hand looms (linsey-woolsey) and made the clothing. One slave was the cobbler and made all the shoes both for the family and the slaves. But all slaves went barefooted in summer. Another slave was the blacksmith with complete shop equipment who shod the horses and repaired all farm machinery. Slaves were valuable property and a local physician was contracted and was paid by the year instead of by the visit.

All pioneer houses were built of logs. But when saw mills were introduced families usually built a new frame house and on practically every farm during this period were found the abandoned log house used for storage and the frame house constructed principally of local timber. The weatherboarding at El-Mo was of walnut and much of the original walnut weatherboarding still remains on the south side of the house.

The frame house era was also accompanied by the replacement of furniture of local manufacture -- such as the Jacob Steinbaugh furniture -- by factory made furniture from the city. Raleigh's first log house was down near the spring in order to insure an ample supply of water. His second house was built a short distance away on a slight elevation. The "front" of the house consisted of four rooms, two upstairs and two downstairs divided by wide halls. The "Ell" likewise consisted of four upstairs rooms and four downstairs rooms -- bedrooms upstairs and dining room and kitchen downstairs. But in later years most of the cooking was done in a separate "cook-house" in order to protect the family from the noise, odors and flies, and the food carried in to the dining room.

With the furniture bought by Raleigh and shipped from St. Louis, to Falmouth by steamboat was a square parlor table finished in mahogany and a long French mirror framed in the same wood which hung on the wall directly above the table. These two pieces antedated Sarepta's marriage and were evidently acquired about 1850. In moving from the log house to the new frame house most of the furniture was moved by wagon but in order to provide special care for the mirror it was sent by hand by a Negro man named Spence. Spence had never seen himself at close range in a mirror and on the way up to the new house took advantage of the occasion to observe himself in the mirror. While so engrossed, his foot struck a projecting root in the path and he fell forward into the mirror completely demolishing it. The table was sold at the executor's sale of the estate and came into the possession of Ida Glovina (V-107) and subsequently on down to her son (VI-251) and is now in the possession of Ida Elizabeth (VII-411), St. Louis.

Emild Kemper, daughter of Martin Kemper and Rosannah Kemper, was born in Culpeper County, Virginia (Family Bible). Sarepta Ann says her father and mother were born in different counties--her father in Fauquier County and her mother in Culpeper County--the two counties adjoined. The Kemper genealogy confirms Culpeper County as the birth place of her mother Emily Kemper Mayes. Raleigh was the first to come to Missouri, he was followed by his father-in-law Martin Kemper who settled on the farm 1 mile east of New Hope at the first turn of the old Gravel Road after leaving New Hope where the Kemper Cemetery is found. This account says Raleigh crossed the Mississippi at Saint Louis then a little French village, most of the houses built with boards standing on end and that he could have taken up government land almost anywhere in the present limits of the city. Raleigh bought 80 acres from John Marrow and built his log house near spring on present site of house of R. L. Mayes (V-104). He made his furniture from the timber about the house, the bed by driving an upright in the clay floor and extending pieces from it to the walls and thrusting them in the cracks between the logs.

Catherine Mayes-----John Daniels
 Jun. 3, 1808
 Feb. 19, 1875

Catherine Mayes was born in Virginia (Census of 1860) and is said to have married there, although Mary Harrison, a former slave of a neighbor says that she was married in Missouri. John Daniels, familiarly known as "Uncle Jack Daniels", was born in Virginia (Census of 1849) and was a brother of Samuel Daniels, father of Sam, Charley and Tobe Daniels. Catherine and her husband lived, and were buried, on his farm north of New Hope near the old Stinebaugh Place now owned by Wilson. After the death of her husband she lived with her nephew Charles Addison Mayes. If she was married in Missouri her marriage may be recorded in St. Charles County as Lincoln was originally a part of St. Charles, County.

Rebecca V. Briscoe granddaughter of Dr. Anderson Briscoe and Rebecca Cleaver who was daughter General Stephen Cleaver.

"I noticed in the Press Journal of March 27, that the Assistant Librarian of the State Historical Society of Missouri, desired information with reference to the man General Stephen Cleaver, who represented Pike county in the convention held at St. Louis, Mo., on Jul. 19, 1820, to ratify the action of Congress, whereby Missouri became a State--and the first election, held in the county in 1819. The Judges of Peno township were Dabney Jones, Daniel Ralls and Richard Matson and that the election was held at the house of General Stephen Cleaver, also surveyed and laid out the town of Frankford.

General Stephen Cleaver was born in Kentucky, May 20, 1766, --served in the Indian War, in his native state, was wounded (shot through the knee) and captured, was held as prisoner for two years, when he made his escape. He was promoted for bravery, made general and helped drive out the Indians.

General Cleaver came to Missouri, with his family about 1816, and settled on a farm in Pike County, now Ralls County, three miles northeast of Frankford, Missouri, on the road known as the old Salt River route. This route was surveyed by him from St. Louis to Hannibal and Palmyra and is in use to this day." H. Jack Jones
